The Anzac Centenary Memorial Walk is a 'memorial for all, not a few'. The project seeks to deliver a memorial space within an urban environment that is simple, elegant and reflective.

Officially opened on 23 April 2016, the Memorial Walk has transformed Kintore Avenue into a memorial precinct that pays tribute to the service and sacrifice of all Australians affected by war.

The Walk now encourages public interaction with Government House and opens up Kintore Avenue as an important piece of public infrastructure connecting Adelaide City with the North Terrace and Riverbank Precincts. More importantly, the Memorial Walk provides a fitting extension to the SA National War Memorial as a gathering place for education, contemplation and reflection.

'In creating this memorial, we ensure the Anzac legacy is protected as we fulfil our responsibility to the past, present and future generations.'

Kangaroo Island Wilderness Trail Campsites by Shannon Architects

The Kangaroo Island Wilderness Trail is a five-day walk in the National Parks of south-west Kangaroo Island. Four isolated campsites form a significant part of this project.

Each campsite differs in its environment, setting and constraints. Prominent plant species in each locality inform the design motifs and combine with other design elements to create subtle points of difference between each site.

The project includes low impact shelters and amenities and the materials palette has been selected to respond to the coastal locations, natural setting and the need for low maintenance.

The considered design of the campgrounds is complemented by a suite of furniture including intimate reflection nodes located to take advantage of naturally occurring features and views.

All works occur within sensitive landscapes and several sites are in areas not previously accessible to the public. Maintaining a wilderness experience and minimising the impact on natural and cultural heritage are essential.
